The Israeli Journal of Occupational Therapy was founded by the Israeli Society of Occupational Therapy, in order to meet various professional needs, e.g. the gathering, editing and collecting of knowledge about Occupational Therapy and its dissemination among Occupational Therapist and other professionals.

The journal provides a platform for professionals desiring to present their views and a description of their clinical work and research to their colleagues and to the general public.

The journal is issued as a quarterly in Hebrew and English. An abstract in the second language is appended to each article. The journal deals with a variety of subjects and includes theoretical articles, research summaries, case and group studies, outlines of techniques used for diagnosis and treatment, and reviews of professional literature.

Members receive copies of the journal.

Cost of annual subscription:
